

F. B. CATE. H. J. SLAYTON. Cate's Real Estate Agency. Wonderful Opportunities.

CATE'S REAL ESTATE AGENCY offers for sale a 400 Acre Farm with excellent buildings thereon, situated in the center of town, near railroad and postoffice—in fact the postoffice is situated upon the farm. Buildings connected with telephone. This farm produces 300 tons of hay, all cut by machinery, and the fields are so free from stone that the plowing is done with a satky-plow. The buildings are situated so that the entire farm can be seen therefrom. The farm is supplied with excellent spring water. This property can be secured on easy terms—small payment down—or it can be secured in exchange for city property. The reason that the owner wishes to dispose of the above place is on account of poor health. Will make a great sacrifice in order to dispose of the same.

FARM one mile from Plainfield postoffice containing 60 acres, one-half story house of nine rooms, all of which are in first-class repair. Barn is nearly new, 30x50 feet, cow stable 6x18, basement under all. Sugar orchard well equipped. Good orchard in good state of cultivation. Soft timber sufficient for farm use. Also running water. Will winter seventeen cattle and team. All mowing done by machine. The above described farm is in first-class condition and thoroughly up to date. Fine crops, consisting of 25 tons of hay in the barn, three acres silo corn, one acre potatoes and small crops. Two horse wagon, mowing machine, rake, disk harrow, spring-tooth harrow, plow, two cultivators, one corn planter and small tools necessary to run a good farm. Will sell stock with the farm if desired.

FARM of 175 acres on good stage road. Mostly meadow land. Contains sugar orchard of 1000 trees. Evaporator and tubs. Apple orchard. Buildings as good as there is in the town. Barn will tie up 35 cows. Also good horse barn. One mile from school. Will sell farm separate or with crops, stock and tools, for small payment down.

FARM of 150 acres, 25 acres wood land, both hard and soft. Good orchard. Extra good buildings all painted. Barn 18x30 by 40 feet, horse barn 30 by 30 feet. Basement under all. Nice level land free from stones. Will keep 25 cows and team. Included are 17 cows, hay tedder, mowing machine, plow, harrows, horse rake, traverse sled, express wagon, work harness, one new milk separator, crop of hay, four and a half acres of corn, nine acres of oats, three-fourths acre of potatoes, etc. It is one-half mile from school, located in a good farming town and is one of the best producing farms in Washington county. Will exchange for city property.

These are all No. 1 Farms and well located on a good stage road. Bolster Block, Rooms 11 and 12

RECONVERTED

(Original)

Anthony Oleott was romantic. He fell in love with Marguerite Searle, and when her mother would not consent to the marriage he felt that the bottom had fallen out of the universe. Marguerite would not marry him without that consent, and as there was no hope and he felt he could not live near her and not possess her he went to a point as far distant as he could well get within the limits of the United States. He settled in Seattle.

He was an attractive fellow, and there were attractive girls in the far west, but Oleott considered his heart broken and would have none of them. When told that some day he would forget all about his youthful love and marry he declared that he would never marry any one but Marguerite Searle. He was certainly a faithful lover, for he cherished her image in his heart, and though he and she grew out of their youth that image remained the same. Marguerite married to suit her mother about a year after Oleott's departure, but Oleott did not hear of it till long after, and then only that she was married. When, where and to whom he did not learn.

Then Oleott's uncle died and left him a fortune on condition that he should take the name, Howe. Oleott accepted the terms and the fortune and went east to manage his estate. He was now forty instead of twenty, and began to feel the necessity of a companion. He was expected by the terms of the will to open the manor house, and would need some one to take care of it and preside over it. The romance in him had died out, at least he said so, and he made up his mind to marry on common sense principles. Some of his friends advised him to choose a woman much younger than himself, since the wife should be younger than the husband, and he would find a girl of twenty much more tractable than a woman of forty. But Oleott, or rather, Howe, which was now his name—demurred, declaring that he would marry one near his own age.

Among those to whom he was introduced after his return to the east was a Mrs. Harding, a widow. There was something about her that reminded him of his old love. Perhaps this influenced him, though he did not acknowledge it to himself. At any rate he made up his mind the first time he saw her that she was the woman he wanted. He was hurried into a somewhat precipitate proposal from the fact that she was preparing for a two years' absence in Europe. Howe determined to stop this if possible and the only way he knew to go about it was to offer her the position he had in mind.

"I know," he said to her, "that we have both passed that romantic period where we think we can love but once. I confess that my heart was given to another when I was but half my present age, and I have been true in a romantic point of view to the girl I loved, and shall always be thus true. But the affection of more mature years is still mine to give, and I am told by married people that the love of romance in time hardens into a family love that, if less violent, is far deeper and more enduring. That love I offer you."

"I, too," said the widow, "have passed into that stage which you describe. I have had one love in which my heart was absolutely engaged and I can never have another such; but I can love as you say, and if such a love is acceptable to you it is yours."

Howe winced. He was quite willing to give a dead love, but when it came to the point he found he preferred a live one in return.

"There is a difference," he said, "between our cases. In yours the object of your love is dead; in mine she may be living, though, I confess, as to this I am not informed. She married years ago, since when I have heard nothing of her."

"You mistake," replied the widow. "My late husband was not the love I refer to. In my girlhood I loved one whom I could not marry."

"Then," said Howe, "we are quits as to these two loves. Had we not better let them remain buried in the dead past and devote ourselves to a living present? I confess these old loves, when confronted with new ones, are musty and have a sepulchral odor. Dear Mrs. Harding—"

"Call me Marguerite," she whispered, letting her head fall on his breast.

"Marguerite?" he asked, starting.

"Yes, Marguerite."

"Marguerite Searle?"

"I was Marguerite Searle."

"And I am—"

"Anthony Oleott."

"You knew me?"

"From the first. A woman's love is not a man's, to forget even the slightest trait, a tone of voice, a step, a look of the eye. She treasures these in her heart, and when they come to her again after years of absence, though disguised, they have for her the same charm as of old."

"Marguerite, forgive me for not—true, you reminded me of yourself, but I confess—"

"There is nothing to forgive you for unless it is for being a man. Men cannot retain what is so enduring in woman."

"But it was you, not I, who—"

"Yes; I obeyed my parents, though it cost me more than it cost you. In this you men have the advantage of us women. You are stronger and less emotional. But when it comes to true love we are far more fervent and enduring." After all, Anthony Oleott Howe concluded that there is a romance in love that neither time nor argument can eradicate. ARNOLD ACKERMAN.
